Pelican™ Protector 1.5 Inch Double-Throw Latch

This is to inform you about an important change to the 1.5" double-throw latch used on Pelican™ Protector Cases.

In the United States, the 1.5" double-throw latch is molded using two different materials. This results in a distinct, two-tone visual appearance, with each component having a visibly different finish. However in Germany, the same latch uses a single material giving it a uniform, single-tone appearance. Additionally, the German latch is cored out to reduce weight while maintaining its functional performance.

Despite the visual differences, there is no performance difference between the two versions. In the future, the US-made latch will transition to a similar single-material design using a new mold, aligning its appearance with the German version. The transition to a single-material design in the US and Germany will not impact the durability, fit or function.
